The basic ideology of the movement was strongly anti-state and anti-urban. The focus of demand was 'price and related issues' (for example price procurement, remunerative prices, and prices for agricultural inputs, taxation, and non-repayment of loans). Novel methods of agitation were used: blocking of roads and railways refusing politicians and bureaucrats entry to villages, and so on.

A social movement is a form of group behaviour. The activity of some individuals who get together to bring about some change in social behaviour, is called social movement. It is far more lasting than the behaviour of a crowd. However, social movement is not organized as an institution, club or committee because the present social system is affected directly or indirectly by social movement. Thus, the study of social movements is very important in sociology.

- (2) How are social movements are different from social institutions?
- (3) How is social behaviour is different from behaviour of crowd?
- (4) The study of Social movements is important for sociology. How?

Q27. Dr. Ambedkar on protection of minorities 'To diehards who have developed a kind of fanaticism against minority protection I would like to say two things. One is that minorities are an explosive force which, if it erupts, can blow up the whole fabric of the state'. The history of Europe bears ample and appalling testimony to this fact. The other is that the minorities in India have agreed to place their existence in the hands of the majority. In the history of negotiations for preventing the partition of Ireland, Redmond said to Carson "Ask for any safeguard you like for the Protestant minority but let us have a United Ireland." Carson's reply was "Damn your safeguards, we don't want to be ruled by you." No minority in India has taken his stand. (John Redmond, catholic majority leader; Sir Edward Carson, protestant minority leader.

Q35. The caste-based antagonism between the dalit and Vanniyar communities has been present in Tamil Nadu for times. The Vanniyar agitations in the late 1980s were directed not only at obtaining action; but also against the fact dalits were "beneficiaries" of the reservation policy. The Vanniyar have traditionally been poor, caste community. The socioeconomic state of the dalits in northern Tamil Nadu has been worse Yet following migrations of upper and middle caste communities to urban areas, many among the Vanniyar become landowners, and dalits farm labourers on 'these lands.'

As a result of reservation, the Vanniyar have improved their socio- economic status and have done well for themselves among the most backward classes. The recent rise soci-economic condition of dalits, sections of whom are moving form labour into various form of urban or migrant work, has created a situation of conflict with the landowning backward classes. This has occasionally resulted in aggressive violence against dalits in several parts of Tamil Nadu in the past decade with the dalits facing attacks largely from the landed backwards classes - Vanniyars in the north, Kallars in the south. The ruling Dravidian parties have been unable (or perhaps unwilling) to do much about this issue, for they too derive a fair amount of support from these landed backward communities. These pages had commented ("dalits in Tamil Nadu", 21 July 2012) on the need for a stronger political mobilization of the dalits in the state.
