Childhood of Guru Tegh Bahadur

10/C

Guru Tegh Bahadur ji the ninth sikh guru born in 1st April 1621 in Amritsar, Punjab. He was the fifth son of Guru Hargobind ji and mata Nanki ji. He had one elder sister and four brothers. From a very young age he was trained in the martial art of archery and horsemanship. He also received religious training from Baba Buddha ji and Bhai Gurdas ji. His education took place under the umbrella of Guru Hargobind ji who was the master father of Miri-Piri (Saint and soldier). He grew up to be a brave young man and displayed considerable courage in the battle against the Mughals only at the age of 14.

Impressed by his valor his father changed his name from "Tyagmal" to "Tegh Bahadur" meaning "Mighty of swords", in recognition of his bravery. From his early childhood he was a saintly, powerful minded, liberal and bold person. He also studied Vedas, Upanishads and Purans. He preferred prolonged spells of seclusion and contemplation. He was married to Mata Gujri ji. Due to premature death of eighth guru Harkrishan ji, he was designated as ninth sikh guru. He sacrificed his life while protecting religion and humanity.
